

Supervisor's Report

I usually report on what is happening in Town Hall. We have been very busy on the budget, but that is not so interesting to report.

So I am going to exercise the Supervisor's prerogative, if there is one, to talk about something that happened in the world today, that was important.

Queen Elizabeth died today at the age of 96, having been queen for seven decades. Of course I liked the fact that she was a strong woman leader. But additionally, Like the rest of the world, I loved her fidelity, her sense of duty and her love for her country. History swirled around her and she remained true to the role to which she had been called.

So I am not asking for a moment of silence or that we close by singing God Save the Queen, but I just think that moments like this are worth noting.
