Announcements

Supervisor Mettler announces that she has received a report from Ray Jurkowski regarding the Valley View Bridge:

The Engineer has been reviewing various shop drawing submittals from the contractor.

I met with the Design Engineer, Contractor and Chris Rickard from NYS Parks to discuss the schedule and installation of the County's temporary bridge for use during the construction period.

The temporary bridge is a single lane structure that will be installed on the south side of the existing structure to allow traffic the travel along Valley View Road. Traffic lights will be utilized to control the traffic pattern.

Installing the temporary bridge will allow the contractor to complete the bridge replacement without the need for staged construction and increase construction productivity. It also is anticipated to reduce the overall schedule by two months.

Based on the above, the proposed schedule is as follows:

January - February 2024 - Install temporary Bridge structure and ramps. Open temporary bridge to traffic.

March - April 2024-Remove existing Valley View bridge structure.

May - June 2024-Construct modifications to concrete abutments for the new bridge.

July - September 2024-Steel girder erection and concrete deck placement.

October -November 2024-Final pavement, open new bridge to traffic and remove temporary bridge.

Supervisor Mettler announces that on September 6, 2023, Christopher Quinby passed away. The Town of Copake has lost a good friend. There will be a moment of silence at the end of the meeting.

Supervisor's Report

At a special meeting on September 5, the Copake Town Board passed a law intended to address the issue of housing in the town and region. The law was recommended by a three-person ad hoc committee appointed in January, comprised of Planning Board Chair Bob Haight, ZBA Vice Chair Dale Peterson and Meredith Kane, an attorney recently retired from Paul Weiss and a member of the Columbia County Housing Committee. The law, inspired in part by a law in Amenia, seeks to encourage the building of moderately priced homes, either by requiring developers to include those homes in their projects or to build such homes on a different site. The law also streamlines the approval of accessory dwellings. Permits for such additional residences may be secured from the Code Enforcement Officer. Copake's Town's land use attorney, Ken Dow, drafted the new law.

Before passing the law, the board heard from Copake Planning Board members, as well as the Columbia County Planning Board. Immediately after passing the law, the town board agreed to send the law to the New York State Division of Local Government Services for review. Recognizing that this is cutting edge legislation, the board has requested an advisory opinion from the state and is open to further modifications of the law.

At a Town Hall meeting on Saturday, September 9, our long-time consultant Margaret Irwin said that the law is one of the first in New York. While it may be further improved, ultimately it will be a model for the state.

I am grateful to the three-member committee and Ken Dow for taking a creative, innovative approach to address a crisis in this town. Understandably, this law may need to be amended. There are still areas which need to be fleshed out. Amenia notwithstanding, our law is one of a kind, a first and original attempt at solving this thorny problem. This law is "sui generis" – in a class by itself. Thanks to all, who participated in drafting this important and forward thinking law.

Solar Update

The long saga of Hecate Energy's efforts to obtain a permit from New York State's Office of Renewable Energy Siting ("ORES") is approaching a critical point. On August 25th, ORES issued a "Notice of Complete Application", thereby indicating it was satisfied that Hecate had provided ORES with enough information for it to decide whether to grant a siting permit to the developer. ORES now has 60 days to either issue a draft permit or deny Hecate's request to construct its 60 megawatt solar factory on 267-acres of mostly prime agricultural farmland in Craryville. So, by late October, we'll know where things stand.

On September 7th, Supervisor Mettler and I met at Town Hall with two representatives from Hecate. Matt Levine who is Director of Development, and Cole Corbett, Development Analyst, who has joined us this evening. Welcome back to Copake.

This was the first in-person meeting with Hecate since January 11th. It happened only because I told two supporters of the proposed Shepherd's Run facility that Hecate, far from being the "community partner" it promised to be, had not been in touch with Town officials in months. They reached out to Hecate, and Mr. Levine subsequently contacted me.

Mr. Levine told us this was his first visit to Copake. He said he has replaced Alex Campbell. He apologized for Hecate's failure to communicate directly with the Town, and promised improved communications going forward, noting that Mr. Corbett will be attending future Town Board meetings. Curiously, Mr. Levine said that most Copakeans support the proposed project, noting that in his experience with other projects, opponents are typically "more vocal" than supporters. Supervisor Mettler promptly disabused him of that notion, indicating that the Board's position that the Shepherd's Run proposal is too big and is poorly sited, mirrors the view of the vast majority of Copakeans. She added that the Town Board remains united on this.

Mr. Levine's misimpression is likely fueled by the few Hecate supporters with whom he spoke, before he and Mr. Corbett met with us.

Mr. Levine told us that he hopes it will be "feasible" for sheep grazing and agrivoltaics to be part of Shepherd's Run, but that no decision has yet been reached. This is a departure from Hecate's filing in response to ORES' 3rd Notice of Incomplete Application that "no active agricultural practices will occur within the fenced area containing the solar arrays during the operation of the Project." So it remains unclear whether Shepherd's Run has been aptly named — will there be sheep?

Even as ORES approaches a siting permit decision, we await a decision on our motion to reargue the appeal of an adverse decision in the ORES regulations lawsuit. That case, brought by Copake, five other small, upstate towns, and seven non-profits, seeks to overturn the regulations under which ORES operates — regulations that were written by Hecate's own energy consultant! Under these regulations, ORES has been able to deny towns — "host communities" — a seat at the table when siting decisions for their towns are made. That is, Copake could be precluded from directly participating in the siting decision-making process, decisions that would have profound impacts on Copake's local environment, character, and economy. As you know, no taxpayer dollars are being spent on this litigation.

And finally, some very important, breaking news: Two days ago, Copake's attorney for solar matters, Ben Wisniewski, attended a Procedural Conference call convened by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) assigned to Hecate's Shepherd's Run siting application and the Chief ALJ for ORES. Mr. Wisniewski told us that at the conference, the ALJ announced a tentative schedule for the ongoing application process, including two days of public hearings after the holidays in early January, to be held right here, in this room, at Copake Town Hall! Mr. Wisniewski said that in his experience with 94-c siting application cases, this is unprecedented. He also noted that accompanying ORES on the Procedural Conference call were representatives of the NYS Department of Agriculture & Markets and Office of Historic Preservation. Their attendance suggests that ORES is seriously assessing Copake's concerns about the project's proposed siting on prime soils, and on what formerly was the Niver Farm (now Rasweiler Farm), which has historic significance due to the Mohican occupation of 1859.

It is unclear at this point how ORES' pending decision — to issue Hecate a draft permit or to issue a Notice of Denial — will affect the procedural schedule. In the meantime, we await ORES' decision with fingers crossed. I will continue to report as developments warrant.

Stay tuned...and thank you.

Department Heads/Committee Reports

Kellie Nardin, Chair of the Bicentennial Committee and Catherine Mikic, Chair of the Historic Marker's Project inform the Town Board of the dates and schedule of the Bicentennial Celebration.

Supervisor Mettler states that both Ms. Nardin and Ms. Mikic came to the budget workshop the other day where they proposed their budget request to the Town Board. Supervisor Mettler states that their budget requests are actually not done until the October meeting but wants them to be free to go ahead and start making plans provided that they both understand that they cannot sign any contracts or spend any money without coming back to the Town Board. Ms. Nardin, Ms. Mikic, and the Town Board all agree of this understanding.

Public Forum

Lindsay LeBrecht, Copake Lake resident, there is a huge objection with many reasons, to the proposed solar development in Craryville. She is happy to hear of the two day Public Hearing but hopes it is not too late. There is a huge amount of objection to this alleged project. Many people thank the Town Board for all that they have done.

Bill Newcomb, Copake resident, strongly objects to the Hecate project.

Lindsay LeBrecht also brings up the point of the decrease of home values to the people that live next to the project. They have repeatedly asked for some sort of compensation and were denied every time and that is morally wrong.

Councilperson Wolf mentions that at the meeting this matter was raised and both Mr. Levine and Mr. Corbett said they would look at it anew.

Catherine Mikic, resident, the land of Copake has a long and deep history rooted in agriculture. It is important to consider the cultural landscape. Copake is a historic landscape. The town's future economic development and its identity, is so connected to the cultural landscape. As she understands it, the Hecate project would just completely demolish the rule of the aspiration of creating Copake as a heritage destination site which has really heeded increasing our economic activity.
